

Nobody knows where they come from, or how they ended up as giant blue-skinned bodybuilders, but the Mauler Twins are perhaps one of the most gifted minds on Earth. They are the only ones to date to accomplish perfect transfer of memories into a grown cloned body.

They have one thing clear: one of them is a clone. But since they share the exact same memories up to that moment, and being perfect clones, they argue who is the original Mauler, and who the clone. Since then they adopted measures to differentiate themselves: one got a nose-ring, the other one usually dresses up in suits or jumpsuits.

The world can be thankful that they are more interested in proving who the real one is, and not world domination. Experimentation is expensive though, so they frequently take on mercenary work.
